

LOWER ELECTRIC CHARGES BY I. N. U. ANNOUNCED TODAY

Commercial Users to Get Reduced Rates Effective April 1st

Savings of $65,000 a year will be realized by Commercial electric customers of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company as the result of a new, lower rate to be made effective April 1, it was announced today by officials of the company.

The new rate, which was approved today by the Illinois Commerce Commission, will immediately benefit a large majority of the commercial customers in all of the 173 communities served by the company. The old commercial rate schedules will be kept in effect for those customers who have already been able to earn favorably low average rates. All customers will be benefited by the new rate as they increase their use of electric service.

With the introduction of the new rate the company has added to a record of commercial rate changes which includes four reductions in the last five years for total savings to its customers of over $170,000 per year. Increased use of service over longer hours of the day by a large number of commercial establishments has served to lower the costs of service and to make the latest reduction possible. It was stated by the company's officials. Under the new rate the demand charge becomes a lesser factor in the total billing and is eliminated in the case of small customers.

Encourages Greater Use

The new rate takes into account the growing tendency on the part of various types of commercial enterprises to develop improved standards of lighting and sign illumination.

Martin Followers Open Convention Of Union Faction

Detroit, March 4.—(AP)—The split between followers of Homer Martin and followers of John L. Lewis became final and official today as Martin opened a convention of his faction of the United Automobile Workers union, claiming delegates representing "an overwhelming majority" of the union's membership.

Martin said that more than 700 delegates were registered, representing nearly 200 locals. Each local had been served notice that attendance at the Martin convention meant severance of relations with the parent organization.

The faction of the union supported by the C. I. O. however, claimed that only 37 locals of the U. A. W. A. still were loyal to Martin. This group claimed that out of a total membership of 371,213 in the U. A. W. A. 315,236 members supported them, while 10,001 members were under suspension, 24,302 had not yet taken a stand, and 21,674 were supporting Martin.

The C. I. O.-supported faction, which recognizes R. J. Thomas as acting president, has called a convention for Cleveland March 27.

Will of Late Marietta Price Probated Today

The will of the late Marietta S. Price of this city, whose death occurred Jan. 30, was admitted to probate before Judge Grover Gehant in the county court today. The inventory listed personal property of the value of $7,000, and Mrs. Anna Street was named executrix. Three heirs are listed, a brother, Horace B. Street, of Minneapolis, Minn., who is to receive one half of the estate, and two nieces, Evelyn C. and Alice A. Street of this city, who are bequeathed one-quarter interests in the estate.

News Oddities

Bits of the Unusual Reported by Associated Press

Berlin, Md., March 4.—(AP)—John Barleycorn may have a new hurdle here.

County legislators have been asked to pass a law requiring liquor drinkers to buy a $2 license.

Paola, Kas., March 4.—(AP)—Mary Coker, graduate nurse, has transportation aplenty.

She drove her newly purchased car from the dealer's straight home, there found a telegram announcing she had won another car in a contest.

Baltimore, March 4.—(AP)—Simon Margot, baseball fan, appeared in police court to answer charges he beat Mrs. Margot.

"I didn't kick her, I just slapped her with my foot," he said.

"Well, isn't that a kick?" asked Magistrate Elmer H. Miller.

"No. It's just like baseball—the difference between a strike and a foul," explained Margot. "This was a foul. I guess I just bunted her."

"I'm about to make a base hit," said Magistrate Miller, and held Margot in $100 bail.

Berkeley, Calif., March 4.—(AP)—A young woman told Municipal Judge Oliver Young she raced 40 miles an hour to get her injured dog to a veterinarian.

"Kindness to animals is admirable," ruled the judge. "Case dismissed."

Up stepped Joseph Cann, 23. He explained he sped 60 miles an hour to get his girl friend home before her mother worried.

"Kindness to mothers—" the judge intoned. "Say, you should have started earlier. Five days or $50."

Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—Pedestrians gaped as Joseph Algori hoisted himself 30 feet in a painter's scaffold to a newly-painted advertising sign.

Soon they roared with laughter as Algori used a few deft strokes to give the girl in the sign a handsome Van Dyke beard and mustache.

The two policemen summoned by the sign painters were waiting for him when he came down.

For not resisting the impulse Algori faces charges of malicious mischief, disorderly conduct and intoxication.

Sales Manager Killed by Train in So. Galena

Galena, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—John Harrington, 45, of Chicago, district sales manager of the Reading Pratt & Cady division of the American Chain & Cable Co., was killed by a train early today.

His body was found at 7 A. M. on the Illinois Central railroad right-of-way in South Galena.

Harrington arrived here Friday night and registered in a hotel. He was last seen alive in a restaurant at 1:30 A. M.

George M. Vail of Chicago, an employee of the same firm, arrived this morning to get an appointment with Harrington.

NINE INDICTED FOR SUPPLYING SPURIOUS VISAS

Charged With Faking of Passports for International Spies

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Indictment of nine persons accused of supplying faked passports to a ring of European spies reopened today the mysterious Robinson-Rubens case, an enigma in international intrigue.

A macabre note was lent by the charge that the ring—in at least two cases—obtained names for fraudulent passports from tombstones in New York cemeteries. Birth certificates of the dead persons were used to provide fresh identities for the alleged spies.

Topping the list of eight men and a woman indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury were Donald L. Robinson—also known as Adolph Arnold Rubens—and his wife, Ruth Marie Rubens, who were whisked away from their Moscow hotel late in 1937 by Russian secret agents.

Robinson, a writer, never was seen again. An American envoy interviewed Mrs. Rubens later in a Moscow prison, where Soviet authorities held her on suspicion of espionage, but no announcement ever was made of her release.

Only Three Named

Federal investigators said they did not know whether either Robinson or his wife still was alive.

Only three others of the nine indicted were named fully. They were Aaron Scharif, former clerk in the Egyptian consulate here; Ossip Garber, Russian-born photographer, and Edward Blatt, an attorney.

The other four indicted were identified only as John Blank, believed a key figure, and Ivan Doe, Dimitri Doe and Alexis Doe.

The indictment asserted the activities of the ring began Jan. 1, 1934, and that frauds were perpetrated in New York City, Merrill, Wis.; Chicago, Ill.; Quebec, Canada; Stockholm, Sweden; Basle, Switzerland; Zagreb, Yugoslavia; Spilfeld, Austria; Eger, Germany; Cheb, Czechoslovakia and Moscow.

Chicago Mayor In Miami, Not To Meet Horner

Miami Beach, Fla., March 4.—(AP)—Though Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago was here today it was not expected he would meet with Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, who is recuperating from an illness caused by over-exertion.

John Casey, the governor's traveling secretary, said last night that the chief executive had not yet been visited by Kelly and that no plans had been made for a meeting. Casey added it was not likely Horner would confer with other Illinois officials enroute here.

Kelly arrived yesterday to participate in the unveiling Monday of a plaque honoring the memory of Anton J. Cernak, former Chicago mayor who was wounded fatally in Miami's Bayfront park in an attempted assassination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, then president-elect.

One hundred and fifty other Chicagoans are due Sunday for the ceremonies. Chairman James M. Slattery of the commerce commission and Charles K. Schwartz, member of the tax commission, were enroute from Springfield. They are members of the four-man regency appointed by Acting Gov. John Stelle to advise him during the governor's absence.

Casey said last night Horner was "getting along fine."

Franklin Lint, So. Dixon, Passes Away

(Telegraph Special Service) Polo, March 4.—The fire department was called to the H. A. Cronister residence at 605 N. Franklin street about 11 o'clock yesterday morning where a chimney fire had started and burned through to the upstairs. A clothes closet and its contents were destroyed at an estimated loss of from $500 to $8000. The damage was not covered by insurance.

Nelson Highway Contract Awarded This Morning

After months of agitation, during which residents of Nelson township have sought to secure an all-season travelable road from the village to connect with the Rock Island road and voted a $30,000 bond issue to be used in paying for such a highway, the county road and bridge committee today awarded a contract for the beginning of construction. Bids were opened today at the office of County Superintendent of Highways Fred W. Leake for the grading, crushed stone foundation, culvert and drainage structures, work to be started as early this spring as possible.

The Brendon Bros. Construction Company of Garden Plain, Ill., was low bidder and was awarded the contract at an estimated figure of $25,992.74. Six other firms submitted bids on the project as follows: Charles O'Brien & Son, Morris, Ill., $34,034.70; Henry R. Carlton, Sterling, $26,864; Hargill Construction Company, Inc., LaGrange, Ill., $28,411.20; D. L. Heagy, Dixon, $37,441.20; H. J. Eppel, Pontiac, Ill., $35,897.04, and Joyce Bros. Construction Company, Springfield, Ill., $29,983.66.

Child Beaten by Man Dies of Injuries Today

Mifflintown, Pa., March 4.—(AP)—A 22-year-old former brickyard worker, held under police guard, was kept uninformed today of the death of two-year-old Marjiam Wolf, whom he is charged with beating and branding.

District Attorney Joseph Niemi said he might tell the prisoner, Paul W. Barrick, later in the presence of witnesses in the jail in this little mountain town where he is awaiting a hearing Tuesday.

The baby died in a Sunbury hospital, 50 miles away, after lying unconscious several days.

Corporal Richard Gray of the state police said Barrick was a jealous suitor of the child's mother.

Commission Suspends Stock Exchange Members

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The Securities Commission suspended William E. Hutton, II, today from membership on the New York stock exchange and other exchanges for three months.

The commission had charged manipulation of the stock of Atlas Tack corporation.

In its order, the commission discontinued proceedings against W. E. Hutton and Company, and John Christie Duncan and Carroll V. Geran, partners of the firm.

The firm has headquarters in Detroit.

The commission also suspended H. H. Michels, for one month, from membership on National Securities Exchanges.

Michels is a member of William Cavalier & Company, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, the San Francisco Stock Exchange and the San Francisco Curb exchange.

The Cavalier firm was not involved in the commissions proceedings.

Death Ends Professor's Fight Against Infection

New York, March 4.—(AP)—A 30-months fight against streptococcus viridans, a rare blood infection, ended in death today for the Rev. Jeremiah Tommey, 41, professor of morals at Dunwoodie seminary, Yonkers, N. Y.

The Jesuit priest died following a long series of blood transfusions. More than 1,000 persons in all parts of the country answered a radio and police teletype appeal for blood donors.

Today Abroad

News From Troubled Countries Briefly Told by AP

Clashes of interests and ideals in far-scattered corners of the world today caused a hunger strike, discord in a cabinet and conquest of a city.

In Rajkot, India, frail, ascetic Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of millions of Indians, entered the second day of his "fast unto death" to persuade the native ruler of Rajkot state to introduce government reforms.

The health minister of the Bombay presidency flew there to watch the health of the Hindu man who, having slept peacefully on a cot in the moonlight outside his hut, showed no ill effects so far.

In Paris, an undercover fight in the French cabinet over what political sources described as a "violent attack" by Colonial Minister Georges Mandel on Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet was brought into the open.

Mandel was said to have censured Bonnet sharply for what, it was said, he charged was Bonnet's "do-nothing" diplomacy in handling France's delicate relations with land-hungry Japan and Italy.

Political observers believed it possible the issue might bring to a head often-reported dissension between two blocs in Premier Daladier's cabinet, one supporting and one attacking Bonnet's policies.

A Japanese pilot it was said in Shanghai, reported capture by Japanese forces of Haichow, last Chinese-held port north of Shanghai and coastal terminus of the great Lungt'ai railroad. This was the climax of a big Japanese mopping-up drive in Kiangsu province, nominally Japanese-conquered territory.

In Vatican City, Pope Pius XII saw members of his hierarchy and began the regular routine of administering the vast affairs of the Holy Roman church to whose throne he was elected Thursday.

The Spanish nationalist government asked French approval of the nomination of Jose Felix Lequerica, mayor of Bilbao, as its first ambassador to Paris. France was expected to approve the nomination promptly.

In the Nazi-dominated Free City of Danzig, a senate ordinance made all Jews responsible for financing speeded-up Jewish emigration. An order provided for grouping Danzig's 6,000 Jews under a "joint liability" system by which the wealthier ones would help pay for the emigration of the poorer.

$136,380 Claim Filed Against Sidley Estate

Racine, Wis., March 4.—(AP)—County court records revealed today that William Horlick, Jr., has filed a claim for $136,380 against the estate of his sister, the late Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley.

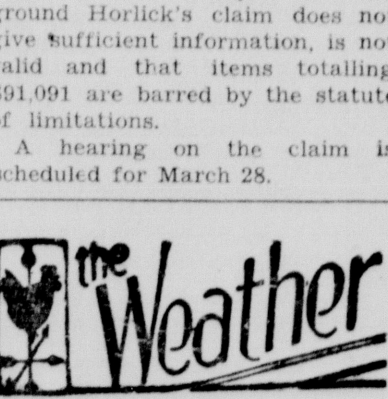

Executors of Mrs. Sidley's will filed objections to the claim yesterday.

The Sidley will was attacked in County court recently by the testatrix's son, William Horlick Sidley. While the hearing was underway, an out-of-court settlement was reached. By its terms, W. Perkins Bull, Toronto lawyer, renounced his claim to a one-third share of the residuary estate. Mrs. Sidley's holdings were valued at between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Horlick asks reimbursement for various loans he claims he made to his sister from 1929 to 1938.

The executor's object on the ground Horlick's claim does not give sufficient information, is not valid and that items totalling $91,091 are barred by the statute of limitations.

A hearing on the claim is scheduled for March 28.

SUPPORTERS OF ARMY BILL ENCOURAGED TODAY

Quick Action on Measure by House Gives Them Cheer

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The speed with which the house approved the $499,857,000 army appropriation bill heightened hopes of administration leaders today that the program for increased armaments would sweep through the senate shortly despite the furious debate it has provoked there.

Without a record vote or a single amendment, the huge appropriation was passed by the house yesterday.

Senatorial disagreement over the army expansion bill centered, meanwhile, on whether 6,000 or 5,500 planes should be set as a limit for the air corps. There appeared little opposition to other parts of the measure, passed previously by the house, which authorized the increased army outlays proposed by the president but leaves their financing to separate appropriation bills.

Senator Borah (R-Idaho) told reporters he believed the senate could demonstrate to the world that it was "not excited and not afraid" if it fixed the maximum air corps strength at 5,500, as approved by the house.

Attack on Lindbergh

On the other hand, Senator Lee (D-Okla.), supporting the senate military committee's amendment to raise the limit to 6,000, said he believed it would be good psychology, from a world standpoint, to approve the higher figure.

Announcing he would support the movement to hold down the plane limitation, Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis.) said he was doubtful the army needed even the 5,500 approved by the house.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) told the senate yesterday he thought the psychology of fear had played an important part in bringing about the Munich conference in Europe last year.

He said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had been permitted to fly over German airplane factories and had made a report to Prime Minister Chamberlain of England which "scared" Chamberlain into arranging the Munich conference.

"Then," Clark shouted, whipping off his glasses, "Lindbergh was decorated by the German government."

Ohio Prison Investigation Reveals Vices

Columbus, O., March 4.—(AP)—An investigation of Ohio penitentiary, which precipitated the suspension last Thursday of Warden James C. Woodard, disclosed evidence of gambling and traffic in liquor and narcotics, welfare department officials asserted today.

Acting Warden W. F. Amrine declined to discuss what information concerning gambling and liquor had been uncovered, but reliable sources indicated convicts had been able to purchase liquor within the walls by the pint bottle; that dice games and poker games were conducted by convicts, and that narcotics were peddled.

Amrine, state superintendent of corrections who took charge of the 105-year-old prison housing 4,200 convicts after a five week inquiry ordered by Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, also declared a huge but undetermined number of state records were burned at the penitentiary before former Gov. Martin L. Davey left office on Jan. 9.

Sherwood, who launched the investigation the day after Republican Gov. John W. Bricker took office, said the suspension was for "disciplinary purposes."

Although Woodard is a Democrat as is former Governor Davey, Sherwood said his action was not motivated by "politics."

Amrine said the investigation was being conducted to gather evidence to support Civil Service charges.

Famed Circus Aerial Performer Died Last Night; Heart Attack

Quincy, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Thomas J. Beckman, 47, famed circus aerial performer of "The Flying Beckmans" troupe, died last night, apparently of heart disease, while conducting practice of aerial performers at a WPA center.

Beckman for years performed under the big tops of leading circuses, including Barnum & Bailey and Ringling Brothers, throughout the United States and in many foreign countries.

A native of Beaver, Mo., Beckman had made his home in Quincy since he was a child. He had been in show business since he was 15.

"The Flying Beckmans" included himself, his brothers, Ed and William, and William's wife, LeDore. Tom Beckman retired in 1937 and recently directed the Beckman troupe of girl aerialists.

Airplane Secrets Locked Up Before Visit of Britain's Royalty

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The Women's National Press Club poked some gentle fun at the King and Queen of Great Britain last night in a skit satirizing their forthcoming visit to the United States.

Deviating from its customary policy of kidding the first family of America, the club turned its annual dinner into a burlesque of royalty. The American scene was touched only briefly.

The satire, called "Our Town," showed King George VI losing his crown in a poker game to Jimmy Roosevelt; and having his cigaret

Some Sentences From President's Address to Congress Today

By The Associated Press

Here are some sentences from President Roosevelt's address commemorating the 150th anniversary of the first session of congress:

Today, with many other democracies, the United States will give no encouragement to the belief that our processes are outworn or that we will approvingly watch the return of forms of government which for two thousand years have proved their tyranny and their instability alike.

Three-score diplomats of foreign governments heard his words from nearby seats in the vast house chamber, where senate and house were convened in joint session.

The chief executive, tanned from his recent Caribbean cruise, spoke at colorful ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of the first congressional session under the constitution.

Preceding the President, Chief Justice Hughes told the assembly that "what the people really want, they generally get."

"With the ultimate power of change through amendment in their hands," Hughes said, "they are always able to obtain whatever a preponderant and abiding sentiment demands."

Reminder of Battle

His statement reminded the legislators and government officials of Roosevelt's unsuccessful proposal to reorganize the Supreme Court and other branches of the judiciary in order, as the President said, to get new blood into the judicial system.

Prior to the President's and Chief Justice's addresses, Speaker Bankhead and Senator Pittman (D-Neu), senate president pro tem, addressed the session.

"There has been no period within the recollection of this generation," Bankhead said, "more full of signs and portents than this present hour of the necessity of reappraising the soundness and desirability of our democratic form of government."

Pittman declared the United States government had "brought a greater degree of liberty, prosperity and happiness to our people than are enjoyed anywhere else in the world."

Cites Keystones

The President, standing in front of a huge American flag, spoke of the keystones of democratic government—"of trial by jury, free speech and freedom of the press and of religion."

He said that in lands where democracy had been snuffed out "the right to worship God in one's own way is circumscribed or abrogated."

"Shall we by our passiveness, by our silence, by assuming the attitude of the levite who pulled his skirts together and passed by on the other side, lend encouragement to those who today persecute religion or deny it?" the chief executive asked.

Roosevelt said that the answer today was "no," just as it was in the early days of the nation. And he added: "not for freedom of religion alone does this nation contend by every peaceful means."

"We believe in the other freedoms of the Bill of Rights, the other freedoms that are inherent in the right of free choice by free men and women."

Badly Bruised Body of Woman Brings Arrest

Michigan City, Ind., March 4.—(AP)—Fifty-year-old Frank Freyer was held here today on an open charge. Police Chief Julian Warner said, after the badly-bruised, nude body of Miss Dorothy Boener, 30, formerly of Chicago, was found on a blood-stained bed in Freyer's home, three and a half miles east of this city.

Warner and State Detective Art Keller said they arrested Freyer after finding bloodstains on his clothing and in his automobile, parked 50 feet from the rear of the house.

Freyer, Warner said, told authorities the woman had been living with him two years. He maintained, Warner added, he and Miss Boener came to the house intoxicated Thursday night, and that she struck her head on a safe in a fall in his kitchen. Later, Warner quoted Freyer as saying, she went to bed. Police were notified of her death by Freyer yesterday.

Keller said he traced a trail of blood from the automobile, into the kitchen, on steps leading to the second floor, in the bathroom and in a spare room upstairs.

There were "several large bruises" on the woman's back and abdomen, Keller added.

WPA Officials Beaten Up and Slugged By Men

Decatur, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Two WPA officials were recovering today from injuries which they said had been inflicted by a gang of WPA workers which attacked them in the city yard.

J. D. McKechnie and W. H. Davis reported the men had beaten and slugged them when informed that their project superintendent, Charles Schultz, had been discharged.

The officials said they had gone to inform the workmen late yesterday they would be transferred to another project. The project on which the gang of about 70 had been working was closed down after Beecher Hughey, city street commissioner, had refused to allow city equipment to be used. Hughey said he thought the dismissal of Schultz "unjustified."

McKechnie reported he was attacked by the workers and that Davis was pummeled when he intervened.

Police said spokesmen for the workers asserted they were protesting the discharge of Schultz and hiring of A. S. Alderman of Joliet.

Hughey said Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, would be asked to investigate Schultz's discharge.

After being treated at a hospital, Davis and McKechnie were taken home.

ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST CONGRESS OBSERVED TODAY

Colorful Ceremonies Before Joint Senate, House Session

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt assured congress today that the United States would not "approvingly watch the returns of forms of government which for two thousand years have proved their tyranny and their instability alike."

In Hollywood

BY PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Hollywood—When you go to a movie and get a first look at a leading man identified as Dennis Morgan, don't worry if your memory seems to be playing tricks. You may think, "Why, that's Stanley Morner, the singer!" Or else, "That must be Richard Stanley, the gangster-heavy!"

In either case, you'll be right. Mr. Morner-Stanley-Morgan is undergoing another of his transformations. He hopes and believes this one will be the last. It certainly has brought him his first real opportunity.

When Metro hired him three years ago he was dismayed to learn that the studio intended to keep him under wraps. Nobody seemed to care whether he had any acting or singing to do, so long as he was around somewhere as a threat to Nelson Eddy. This "threat" idea is a favorite device for restraining fractious stars. Examples: Annabella was engaged as a possible successor of Simone Simon. Jeffrey Lynn for Errol Flynn. Isa Miranda for Marlene Dietrich. Ronald Sinclair for Freddie Bartholomew.

Each of these substitutes was lucky enough to step into a role vacated by the stars they resembled. But Stanley Morner never got a good part.

Metro, Golf Teacher

He doesn't talk about those unhappy years; skips them with some such reference as "when I was out at Metro learning to play golf." But I know some of the things that happened. For example, Morner was the handsome gent in "The Great Ziegfeld" who seemed to sing the big flash number, "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." Only he didn't sing it.

The voice was that of Allan Jones. Producer Hunt Stromberg had planned to use Jones, and the latter had recorded the song. But when the time came to photograph the sequence, Jones was on loan to Universal. So Morner was hustled in and silently mouthed the words before the camera.

The voice dubbing was discovered and widely commented upon by people who didn't bother to learn the real reason. They figured that Jones didn't photograph well enough and that Morner couldn't sing well enough. As a matter of fact, the producer didn't even give Morner a chance to sing out loud.

Morner made one musical short, played a few small parts in features, and had the male lead in a Class Z picture called "Mama Steps Out." It was awful. Morner and Alice Brady walked out on their own preview, crossed the street to a bar and had three quick drinks.

Last year the actor was able to desert his movie career of thumb-twiddling and sing in "The Student Prince" for the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Company. It was a long engagement and brought offers from the New York stage, where people still remembered that Morner was a talented fellow with an impressive musical background. But Paramount persuaded him to come to work there. "Great chance for a fine young singer," they said.

So they made him a gangster and his name was changed to Richard Stanley. "In my first picture, I had three lines and two of 'em were cut out," he recalled. "This was just as well, because I was killed in an early sequence anyway. Then I went into 'Illegal Traffic' and was a despicable rascal who'd shoot women and kids. Next I impersonated Al Capone in 'Persons in Hiding'—with the aid of makeup that took about three hours to apply.

"One day I was on an empty stage rehearsing some songs for a radio broadcast. An executive came by and said, 'Good Lord, I didn't know you could sing!' I said sure I could sing, and tossed off a couple of arias. He sent me to Charles Rogers, and Rogers asked if I'd ever tested for 'The Desert Song.' I hadn't, so he sent me to Jack Warner, who owns the story."

Warners gave him a screen test, both singing and acting. He was hired at once and his name changed to Dennis Morgan. Then he was hustled into a part originally intended for Wayne Morris. It's the top role in "Waterfront," opposite Gloria Dickson. Morgan is a stevedore and doesn't sing a note.

One-minute interviews: "Nobody hates censorship more than I do," said Garson Kanin, director. "But I believe the twisting of facts and sentiment in so-called historical pictures is downright dangerous and a lot more censorable than other things considered unobjectionable."

"Remember that long speech Henry Hull had to make at the monument or tombstone or whatever it was of Jesse James? The script said that America wasn't ashamed of James, and it said that America admires a man who is good in his line."

"Great grief! Did America admire Gerald Chapman? Did it admire John Dillinger? Well, they were pretty good in their line!"

JUDITH BARRETT: "I'm tired of parties and dates and stories about imaginary romances. I'd marry the first young man that came along if he measured up to my specifications—and they're not very strict. He needn't be handsome or have a lot of money, but he must have a good pedigree, a pleasing personality, a sense of humor and some love of a home. I suppose I'll have to go outside of Hollywood to find such a man. Oh, yes—he'd have to let me keep on with my acting career."

RICHARD DIX: "We've really been working hard at this 'Man of Conquest.' I got up at 4 o'clock the other morning and started to work at 9 at Sam Houston at the age of 65. At noon I was playing Houston when he was 35 and the governor of Tennessee. Then I got a call to come back that evening and do some scenes as Houston in his early 20s."

"I was pretty tired by that time so I went and hired me an ambulance and had it deliver me at the lot. I think the studio got the idea; anyway, we haven't worked any evenings since then."

JAMES ELLISON: "When I finish this picture my wife and I are going to rush down to our boat and go on a month's cruise—and I'm not saying where. We've been married two years and haven't had a chance to go on a honeymoon yet. We were about to go once, and just as I was casting off I got a call to report for work in 'Vivacious Lady.' So we spent a week-end on the boat—tied to the dock. And I've been working steadily ever since."

HENRY ARMETTA: "That was a terrible thing that magazine said about me—about me not liking spaghetti! I have it three times a week. I even put it in my soup. What's more, I cook it myself, personally!"

SEYMOUR FELIX, dance director: "I'm an awful sucker for practical jokes, especially Bill Maguire's practical jokes. He can pull the same gag on me time after time—like when he said he was giving a birthday party and did I have any novel ideas for a party."

"So I said sure, to give a black-face party and I would come as Little Eva. . . He said okay, so on the night of the party I was sure I'd win the prize because I was all blacked up and in ragged dress and a pigtail wig, and even carrying a cake of ice with a pair of tongs. I prances into the party, and not a person there was in costume or burnt cork. Well they couldn't see my blushes, anyway."

WILLIAM WYLER, director: "Acting is everything in a picture, and no director can make a good picture without it. The actor must, if he's any good, create the atmosphere. Sets, costumes—nothing else is important. If an audience can believe the actor it will believe the clothes he's wearing, the room he's in, and the situation. The old stage director who told his hero to 'walk in trailer'—the green fields of Ireland—was no chump. . . Critics praised me for the convincing southern atmosphere in 'Jezebel.' I had very little to do with it; Fay Bainter and Bette Davis were the ones who made it seem real."

DEMOCRATS PLAN RETALIATION IN PAYROLL PROBES

May Call Officials of Small and Emmerson State Regimes

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Indications that Democratic state officials may be called next week before the house committee investigating payroll spending came from Republican legislators today as the investigators adjourned until next Tuesday to study a budgetary commission report.

Plans to inspect payroll records for the last four years were delayed Thursday when State Auditor Edward J. Barrett said he was reluctant to move the books but invited the committee to make an inspection in his office.

Rep. Clinton Searle of Rock Island, chairman of the Republican-controlled investigation, said a study of the budgetary commission report on appropriations and expenditures for the last 10 years was started instead and that state officials probably would be called to explain the increases in governmental costs.

Democratic Retaliation

Meanwhile a Democratic-dominated senate investigating committee was reported ready to subpoena Republican officials of the Small and Emmerson administrations if the house committee starts digging into Horner administration finances.

Searle sent a letter to Senator Nicholas L. Hubbard of Mt. Pleasant saying the house committee would "be glad to cooperate" with the senate group but committee members said joint hearings were not contemplated.

Instead of appearing with payroll records for the last four years requested by the house committee, Raymond J. Bergen, assistant to Barrett, brought a letter from the state auditor suggesting that the records be examined in the auditor's office.

The records are "very voluminous" and "most difficult to transfer" and in addition the law requires that the records be kept in the auditor's office, Barrett pointed out. Searle did not insist on presentation of the records.

Both the house and senate committees are scheduled to meet next Tuesday when the legislature reconvenes after a two-week recess.

Daily Health

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles in which Dr. Fishbein discusses the possibility of "spare parts" for the human body.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

There are occasional reports in medical literature of instances in which a portion of the nose or of the ear has been lost in a molar car accident and has been immediately replaced and sewn in proper position with the result that healing occurred and the damage was thus taken care of.

This does not mean that it would be possible in the case of a person who had lost a considerable portion of the nose, the ear or any other part of the body to take such a portion from another human being and transplant it successfully.

This would be ideal if it could be accomplished, but the human body is so complex, the blood and tissues of each human being differ so greatly from those of other human beings, that apparently it is impossible for large masses of tissues taken from one human being to live in the body of another.

However, it is possible to repair a defect of the tissues of one human being with material taken from his own body. For example, in certain cases in which a portion of the nose has been destroyed, a portion of skin may be taken from the thigh or from the neck or from the breast or some other portion of the body where there may be excessive skin and tissues and transplanted in such a way as to repair the defect.

An instance is reported of a man who was bitten in the left ear in a street fight. A regular elongated piece was missing from the upper part of the left ear. After this wound healed so that there was freedom from any possibility of infection, the excessive scar tissue was removed and the ragged edges of the skin were cut evenly.

Then excess tissue was taken from the ear itself and transplanted into the outer margin of the ear in such a way as to completely occupy the area that had been lost. This resulted in successful healing.

The modern plastic surgeon avails himself of the procedure that is called the traveling skin graft. Thus the tissue maintains its life as long as it is kept in contact with the nerve supply and the blood supply.

By this means a portion of the skin may be elevated from the

In New York

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York — It is a poignant moment whenever one of yesterday's idolized headlines reappears in the gray present.

The other day Billy Rose was selecting hundreds of shapely water-nymphs for his forthcoming Aquacade. After dozens of coryphees had stepped before the judging stand, one aspirant, clad in a scanty bathing suit, stepped forward.

She had received no unusual consideration while she waited her turn to be viewed and interviewed. But she was instantly recognized by Rose and his henchmen.

She was Gertrude Ederle, object of national adulation after her feat of swimming across the English Channel.

Her hearing impaired, her avoidupois increased, Miss Ederle has been quietly spending the years as a swimming instructor around Manhattan. Now if Rose decides that she is to be in the Aquacade, she will clamber back into the limelight.

Living Jailbirds

The other day a busload of Broadway stars—among them Olsen & Johnson, Clyde Hager, Hildegarde and the Andrew Sisters—journeyed to Ossining to entertain the convicts at Sing Sing.

One of this delegation was amazed, he says, to discover that the inmates of that grim institution are well up on the latest jests and tunes of the day.

Though the Rialto contingent was fearful, before passing through the prison gates, than an explanation for the phenomenon of swing would have to be made to the shut-ins, it was somewhat startled and surprised to learn that the prison population was well-informed about jitterbugs.

The climax came when the Andrew Sisters rose to sing a fairly new swing tune entitled "Hold Tight," which barely has made a stir off Tin Pan Alley. But Sing Sing's populace seemed to know all about "Hold Tight." Knew about it, through their cell-block radios.

Trucking Truants

Speaking of the swing-maniacs, the schoolmasters finally are doing something about the mysterious absences in classrooms whenever a popular band turns up at the cinema palaces.

When Benny Goodman is at the Paramount, or Artie Shaw is at the Strand, the number of unoccupied desks increases by leaps and bounds.

Boss Greeter

Hotels nowadays are big corporate affairs wherein the proprietors of the hostelry are unknown even to the desk clerks. Not so at the Astor where Fred A. Muschenheim presides.

Leaving the intricate management of the Astor to other and able men, the 68-year-old Mr. Muschenheim finds time to be on a friendly footing with much of the hotel's patronage. Maestro Arturo Toscanini is one of his oldest personal friends and visitors. The maestro invariably stops there.

FIRST LADY TO START LECTURE TOUR ON SUNDAY

Will Be Her Seventh Since She Entered the White House

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—In six busy years, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has proved the White House less of a prison than she herself predicted.

With a zestful, "I'd love to fly the Atlantic," she accepted an invitation to christen a huge trans-Atlantic plane Friday afternoon.

Sunday, starting her seventh year as America's first lady, she will head southwest on her seventh paid lecture tour. She will add more miles to upwards of 200,000 traveled since March 4, 1933, and thus continue making a new pattern for president's wives.

Yet, six years ago, Mrs. Roosevelt arranged to curtail a good many of her activities preparatory to entering the White House.

"I have realized all along," she said a month before her husband's inauguration, "that I shall have to give up a good many things March 4."

Gave Up Some Work

Among the activities which Mrs. Roosevelt arranged to give up were a teaching position at her Todhunter School for Girls, radio talks on a commercial hour, several writing contracts, and much of her public speaking.

She emphasized she was not curtailing her activities because of criticism. Discussing her critics with unruffled calm, as she since has done in the White House, she said there were more appeals for help than slams in the 200 letters she received daily. One could not help, she said, without money.

In the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt's mail increased, and presumably her requests for aid mounted. She received nearly 1,000,000 letters last year, of which 10,000 were classed as personal.

New Radio Contract

Soon after becoming first lady, she undertook new radio contracts, with money paid direct to the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker charity. She has contributed articles to popular magazines and has written four books, one an autobiography begun on a campaign train. Most of the money she has earned, it is understood, has gone to charity.

In her unceasing study of American life, she dedicated a Kentucky high school, rode in a benefit horse show, went backstage at theaters, danced with shirt-sleeved homesteaders and sponsored struggling performers.

In the last year, Mrs. Roosevelt served hot dogs to Sweden's Crown Princess at a picnic, went picnicking with Shirley Temple, and wrote letters for her secretary during the latter's illness.

Franklin Grove Couples Pledge Wedding Vows

Mrs. Bessie Louise Merston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Edwards, and Carl Sunday, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Sunday, both of Franklin Grove, were married at the home of the bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sunday in Ashton. The Rev. Ralph M. Dreger performed the single ring ceremony at high noon.

As the Lohengrin wedding march was played on the piano by Donna Maude Sunday, the bridegroom's niece, members of the bridal party took their places in the living room before an improvised altar, screened with greenery.

Mrs. June Altenberg of Bloomington and Kenneth Wasson of Franklin Grove attended the couple. Members of the immediate families made up the guest list.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta, with a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Altenberg wore rose-colored carnations with her rose taffeta dress.

A wedding dinner was served by Mrs. Sunday, assisted by her daughter, Donna Maude, and Miss Mary Ethel Rosenkrans. After pictures were taken, the couple left by motor on a brief wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Sunday will make their home at Mrs. Ethel Baker's residence in Franklin Grove.

Mrs. Sunday formerly resided in Amboy and attended the Amboy schools. The bridegroom has always lived in Franklin Grove, where he was graduated from high school in 1929.

E. J. Ferguson of 508 Galena avenue returned to Winter Haven, Fla., yesterday for a month's stay. He will return to Dixon by motor with Dr. Wasson of Oelwein, Ia.

X. F. Gehant of Franklin Grove Road was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lambert last evening.

Members of Boy Scout troop No. 72 and their leader, Homer Schildberg, went on a hike this morning, preparing an outdoor meal at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Marth and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marth of Dixon are spending several weeks touring Florida and recently stopped at Winter Haven, "The city of 100 lakes," for a short visit.

The Girl Scout leader's meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Joselyn. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Fremont Kaufman, N576 by Monday morning.

Charles K. Willett, Clifford Missman and Robert Anderson have returned home from Champaign where they attended the annual surveyor's conference and short course.

Miss Amanda Morris who narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation at her home Thursday morning, is still confined to her bed, but is recovering from the effects of her experience.

Charles Richards, supervising engineer on the Galena avenue bridge, has resumed his duties after being confined to his home for several days suffering from an attack of influenza.

LODGES

R. A. M.—The Mark Master's degree will be conferred at the stated meeting of Nachusa chapter No. 56, R. A. M., at the Masonic temple at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening. Refreshments will be served after the chapter session.

New Bern, second oldest town in North Carolina, was settled in 1710 by Swiss immigrants.

Joint hostesses will include Mrs. O. L. Baird, Mrs. Frank Edwards, Mrs. Helen Shickley, Mrs. Willard Thompson, Mrs. Frances Miller and Mrs. W. B. Rusch.

CITY MANAGER BILL CONSIDERED

State representatives at Springfield have before them five bills which would permit Chicago and other Illinois cities of more than 5,000 population to vote whether or not they favor city managers instead of aldermanic or commission forms of government.

A great argument is made over the fact that people ought to have the right to change to the city manager plan if they so desire. It is also said, in a bulletin from the Chicago city manager committee, that Cincinnati, Toledo, Oakland and some 450 other American cities now have city managers. Illinois cities of less than 5,000 population may adopt the plan if they wish.

Among those cities which the Chicago committee failed to mention when praising city manager governments is Kansas City, Mo., which is in the news because ninety indictments have been returned by a county grand jury investigating crime and political corruption. According to news reports the city is in the hands of Democratic boss Tom Pendergast. There have been election sluggings and slayings, kidnappings, vote fixing, graveyard registrations, registrations of the same persons in more than one precinct, and convictions for election irregularities. There are gangsters and racketeers who seem to flourish with a minimum of police interference; and in at least one instance a petty tire thief seems immune to prison threats. Labor racketeers have been permitted to ply their business openly; automobiles privately owned have been damaged by acid thrown by agitators who didn't like the manufacturer's labor policy. For a time the city was in a reign of terror because of window smashing.

No one would make the point that this scene is caused by the city manager form of government; what we wish to prove is that the city manager government did not prevent it. Often it is said that every city has graft and vice in direct ratio to the number of people who fail to make known their disapproval. It is hard to say even that harsh a thing of Kansas City, which has a remarkable record aside from its political aspects. The truth is that at some time the city got into the wrong hands.

The conclusion must be that if the setup is favorable to vice and political irregularities, these evils will flourish in spite of either city managers, aldermen or commissioners.

Probably the cities of Illinois that wish to adopt city manager form of government should be allowed the right to vote in favor of it. But it will not be a panacea.

COLORED SINGER BARRED

Marian Anderson, Negro contralto, has been barred from singing in a Washington, D. C., hall under control of Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, withdrew her membership in the D. A. R. as result of the incident.

As nearly as we can get the facts from the scattered and often angry comment, it appears that the Washington D. A. R. has a rule against Negro meetings in its hall. The D. A. R. was in a spot. It would have been in an even worse spot if it had permitted the contralto to sing, but denied admission to colored people who wanted to hear her.

The singer's managers, if they wished, could have determined in advance whether permission could be obtained, but apparently they or Miss Anderson wished to make an issue head-on.

We speak not of things as they might be, but as they are. Neither this generation nor many to come will see a solution to the race problem in the United States. There are or at least have been towns in the southwest where colored people, however worthy, are not permitted to reside. The south has its Jim Crow regulations and enforces them vigorously. Every train south of the Mason-Dixon line has its Jim Crow car in which Negroes must ride. There are Negro schools, Negro theaters and Negro restaurants.

The Marian Anderson incident is a tiny cross-section of a great problem.

Still, it need not be a great problem. Thinking about it illogically makes it difficult to deal with. The greatest Negro leaders have urged that the two races live apart. Equality need have no bearing on the situation. There simply is a white race and a black race, and sound thought in both races calls for reasonable segregation.

We have seen a white man thrown out of a Negro restaurant in the south, where the older generation still thinks about the problem intelligently. On the other hand we have seen white children and their dusky friends play games together without interference. We have seen white men who were virtually brought up by Negro nurses, and houses staffed with Negro servants.

Most of the Negro's unhappiness in regard to segregation is due to the efforts of those who seek to make political capital out of the Negro vote.

INFLUENZA INCREASING

State health department officials are calling attention to a noticeable increase in the number of cases of influenza in Illinois. Total number of cases reported between Feb. 7 and Feb. 15 was 781.

Having in mind the influenza epidemic occurring during the World War period, and the advice of physicians that such an epidemic can be expected every 15 or 20 years, some newspapers have exhibited alarm.

It can be shown, however, that most of these cases originate in the Chicago area. Some persons believe the mild winter has been favorable to development of the influenza bug, and that the cold snap now prevailing may bring it under control.

Furthermore, even if more than twenty years have elapsed since the World War epidemic, it does not prove that a new spread of the ailment would be as fatal at this time, or that there would be as many cases.

EXCESSES BRING REACTION

Among the bills being considered by the Kansas legislature is one prohibiting sit-down strikes, and imposing fines and prison sentences upon violators if the measure is enacted into law.

Kansas has experimented with other labor laws in the past, and can be expected to lead the way again. But what is happening in Kansas is indication that excesses such as have taken place in Michigan bring an inevitable reaction, to the disadvantage of constructive labor leaders.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

Chapter 40
LOVE AND WAR

"Why do you think there will be a raid?" Petrel asked.
Peter leaned forward. "Because we were left in peace last night, is the reason everyone is being given. Actually, it is because reinforcements have joined the rebels."
"Are you sure? How do you know?"
"I've been out all night."

"During the day she found that his information had been correct. Others were spreading the same news round Madrid, whipping it into panic. There was a scared, high-strung look on people's faces. That night they all three dined together. As a matter of fact, it should be very surprising if Madrid falls before Christmas," Tony stated. Petronella was amazed, but Peter agreed with him.
"This place, by nature of its position, is a natural fortress."
"They're recruiting hard. They have food," Tony added.
"It seems impossible they can hold out," she shook her head. Today, she had seen every sign of a struggle waiting to be taken down the road to Valencia. She would never forget their faces. They had been people without heart. They had left treasure behind them, and they had looted, and spoiled. But safety was a dream which few believed they would ever attain. Militiamen had been helping pile them, their belongings, and their children, into lorries and on to pitiful little carts. They had been wrinkled old people, and tiny babies. Some of the children, who had been wounded, wore bandages.

"There's another reason why it will go on," Tony told her. "Soon, Spain will be pleading for non-intervention as hard as we are. It won't be her fight any longer. This country will be the battleground for a duel between Communism and Fascism. Backing each side will be the powers who believe they dare not let heresy win. See if I'm not right. It won't be a fight between lords, and peasants, any longer."
Later in the evening Petronella asked her question. "Tony, is your job here nearly finished?" He looked back at her.
"You're my job. As soon as you're ready to move, we'll go home."

"Darling! I'll leave Spain. But she knew he did not stay away. "In that case," your job is here, I'm staying."

They argued with her, but halfheartedly. Tony wanted her here, but he wanted her safe. Two contradictory things. But if he was to be a choice, he would let her decide. He believed that her life was her own, to risk, if she preferred danger to suspense and loneliness in England.

But at least, they both insisted, she must agree to go to the British Embassy. They found it better to shift for themselves, but in the present suspicion, panic, and constant shelling and air attack, it was unsafe for her to go out into the streets.
"Very well, tomorrow, if they'll have me," she agreed.
That night, the city of Madrid lay in darkness. There was a silver crescent of a new moon. They sat on the veranda of their hotel, wearing coats over their pajamas, and listened to the hum of insurgent planes approaching. Petronella's hand was in Tony's, warm and sure. It was strange, to feel at once so happy, yet so afraid. They looked up. Against the starry night, the sky was silhouetted the skyscraper of the Telefonica. Its lights were lower as the drone of the Soviets grew in volume.

"It's odd I'd forgotten there was a skyscraper in Spain," Tony said.
"It makes a target the insurgent artillery can't miss," Tony told her. In the hush which preceded the din of anti-aircraft, of severe bombing and the deafening explosions of bombs falling on the honeycomb of University city, and the Puerto del Sol, Petronella remembered that Aunt Maisie had foretold this night, as she lay dying.

Strange Wedding
On the following day, Petronella purchased her mattress and moved to the British Embassy. She was transported thither in a car.

Answer to Yesterday's Twizler
A soldier may be started from any point. He moves in a straight line to the opposite point. The second one starts from the point which leads to the point from which the first soldier started. Then the third soldier starts from the point which leads to the point from which the second soldier started and so on.

Some Items Behind the News in National Capital Today

BY BRUCE CATTON
Dixon Evening Telegraph's Washington Correspondent

Washington, March 4—If running the manifold affairs of WPA gets Col. Francis P. Harrington down, it won't be the colonel's fault. He believes in putting a job in its place.

Most Washington office-holders tell you that they are on practically 24-hour duty—take work home at night, come down Sunday, live for their work, never have a chance to exercise or relax. But not the WPA administrator.

Col. Harrington figures that if a man has to work overtime day in and day out it's probably the man's fault rather than the job's. He recalls that when he first came to WPA as assistant administrator in the fall of 1935 he had to work 14 or 15 hours a day.

At the time, Mrs. Harrington once remarked to Mrs. Harry Hopkins that WPA ought to be called HWA — Home-Wrecking administration. But the colonel soon got his job tamed so that it only called for normal office hours.

Works Some Holidays
Nowadays he gets down to work about 9:30 in the morning and goes home around 6 or 6:30 in the evening. He steals a march on the job by coming down on holidays, now and then, and getting in three or four hours of concentrated work. Then, he explains, "these telephones leave me alone."

He figures he will presently have things systematized so that he can move quitting time up a bit. But he'll never belong to the two-hours-for-lunch fraternity.

Following graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1908, Harrington entered the army engineer corps. He had charge of a construction crew during building of the Panama Canal and later oversaw maintenance there. When America entered the war, he gave up a mathematics teaching post at West Point to serve as instructor in officers' training camps. He is a graduate of several U. S. service schools and attended the Ecole Supérieure de Guerre in Paris. The colonel celebrated birthday 51 last fall.

He looks as fit as a youngster fresh out of West Point. He has a clear, pinkish complexion—his nickname, among his friends, is "Pinkie"—and neat grayish hair. He looks military, even in civilian clothes, but isn't the crisp, dam-you-my-man type at all. When you call on him he lolls far back in his chair with his feet up and smokes a cigaret.

Believes In His Job

He likes his present job—says it's more work than the assignments he had in the army engineer corps, but more fun too. He is inclined to think that WPA or something like it will be with us for quite a while yet, although he hopes that as business picks up the WPA roll can be cut down to a million men or less. This, he suspects, may take a couple of years.

He believes that WPA offers a chance to make a real contribution to the solution of one of the nation's toughest problems—what to do about the unemployed—and points out that since population growth adds half a million men to the ranks of the workers each year the problem may be a long time getting solved.

As an army engineer, Col. Harrington has had plenty of experience with civilian workers on construction jobs in private industry. He says it isn't quite fair to ask him to compare those workers with the WPA crews.

The private contractors pick the best men they can get, and the age lever in their crews is substantially lower than in WPA. Those allowances made, he adds, the WPA crews can stand the comparison very well.

Speedy On Decisions

If the army and WPA ever throw the colonel out, he can always get a job as copy reader on a newspaper. When his staff brings documents of one sort and another for revision and editorial correction, he takes a pencil and goes through the copy with lightning speed. An ex-newspaperman on his staff calls him the best copy-reader he ever saw (which may come under the heading of damning with faint praise).

The colonel knows how to delegate authority, and refuses to let paper work pile up on his desk. He doesn't make snap judgments, but once he has passed on a problem or a job he doesn't go back and worry about it. He may take his time about saying something, but when he says it, it goes.

Col. Harrington lives in a house in Georgetown with his mother and daughter. He is a widower. Mrs. Harrington having died a little more than a year ago. He has one son, a student at Yale. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

A Brother Act

BY ROBBINS COONS
AP Feature Service Writer

Hollywood—The screen's foremost brother act—Groucho, Harpo, Chico, Yvonne, Marie, Emily, etc.—is as mad as this sentence. There is nothing particularly funny in stirring in names of Dionne quint's with those of the Marxes. What is funny is that the Marx brothers could make it so.

The humor that makes them is, like most good humor, not to be catalogued. Some of it may hail from Joe Miller's joke book, but they blow away the stale aroma and douse it with the perfume of surprise. They put, if you will pardon Groucho for not pulling this first, their Marx upon it.

So it is that Groucho, talking fairly sanely one moment, swings into a chorus boy, off-to-Buffalo rendition of a serenade to tapioca pudding. Or, like Harpo in a crowded room suddenly going berserk and threatening to remove his trousers—or, Chicago, who makes the threat good. It's just the Marx brothers.

What They Haven't Got

They are "cards," as in "Ain't he a card?" For ceremony they have no reverence. For boredom they have no time. For a big movie executive's elaborate new fireplace, once, they had only beefsteaks. They broiled 'em there, filling the sacred precincts with steak smoke.

Once Groucho, middle one of five brothers, was alone in the public eye. He was 15 and a high-voiced, blond-wigged, short-dressed chorine in a vaudeville trio, making $25 a week—which opened the eyes of the others.

His father (described by the brothers as a "haphazard tailor who did his cutting in a dark room and seldom collected because his garments never fit") also made $25 a week—some weeks. His mother, a sister of the noted Al Shean, was ambitious for her boys. The family lived in and about the Yorkville section of New York, moving frequently. ("We all hid when the door bell rang—we knew it was some collector.")

Harpo was making 50 cents a Saturday, delivering groceries. Chico was making $3.50 a week piano-pounding for a nickelodeon. ("Spent it all on pool," swears Groucho darkly.)

The March of the Marxes

In time, Mother Marx had Gummo, Groucho and a girl on the road as "The Three Nightingales." Harpo became a bell-hop. When Chico left his nickelodeon to play a roadhouse, Harpo stepped into his job without notifying the theater manager. The only tune Harpo could manage pianistically was "Love Me and the World Is Mine." It was weeks before the manager caught on.

In those days, slanderous Groucho relates, "when you got tossed out of other jobs you went on the stage. Harpo joined 'The Three Nightingales.' That made four who couldn't sing instead of three."

Chico finally joined the Marxes on the road. Pithy review from the Chicago Tribune: "The Marx Brothers in 'Home Again' should be."

"I'll Say She Is," a musical revue, was their first full show on Broadway. The critics discovered them. "Animal Crackers" and "The Cocoanuts" sent them to Hollywood.

2 From 5 Leaves 3

Gummo went into business after the war. He's now associated with Zeppo, the youngest in an agency business. When Zeppo—the others aver—saw himself on the screen, he made violent plans to quit acting.

The Marxes have teamed together for 20 years. Except for the departures of Zeppo and Gummo, they have never separated; never will. Family ties, and the thought that their mother, now dead, would be grieved if they parted, bind them.

They split their earnings an even three ways. They also share the laughs. Only once, at San Francisco, was there a near bust-up. They don't remember why, but after a rehearsal each was so sore that he packed up. Somehow, though, everyone was on deck for the next curtain call.

Inseparable on screen, in real life they are seldom together. As in boyhood, they "run with different crowds." Occasionally there is a family conference, which (also occasionally) settles something. Chico and Harpo, confirmed gamblers on anything and everything, make Tuesday and Friday prize-fights their "must" engagements. Groucho, rarely a fight-goer, spends his enthusiasm on tennis—mainly as a spectator since his 17-year-old son Arthur walloped him two days running.

They Battle On

They now make one picture a year. Procedure, according to Groucho:

Answer to Question No. 1

1. That would surely be my own opinion because several such couples that I have known have tried this experiment and ended by finding they could not be happy without each other. A recent survey of the opinions of a large group of college students showed that this, too, was their opinion. This survey shows something as to how the intelligent, educated young people feel about it. Couples who go right from their homes to the divorce court are taking a grave risk of regretting it all their lives. Better try living without each other first.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. In cases where the injured person has been taking little exercise or using his eyes very little there is for a short time a slight increase of strength in the other member simply because it is given more exercise. But an injury to one member of the body does not in itself cause its opposite to increase in strength. This notion of "compensation" has no scientific support.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. In some cases perhaps so, but many schools (and homes, too) do far less for bright children than for slow and dull. They really backward child in most schools is the brilliant child—the future genius. He is farther behind in his grades from where he ought to be than the dull child is. Every effort is made to pull up the dull child but little to promote the bright one—indeed in many school rooms he is sat on and ridiculed as a Smart Aleck. In progressive schools the bright children are given an equal chance with the dull ones. Brilliant children succeed mostly because they have more brains, but good environment helps them more than it does the dull ones because their hereditary enables them to get more out of it.

Old Sailing Ship is Safe in Harbor After 3-Day Battle at Sea

Halifax, Nova Scotia, March 4. (Canadian Press)—The 67-year-old sealing ship Ranger was anchored safely today in outer trepassy harbor after a three-day battle with heavy seas that flooded her engines and threatened to swamp her.

The Ranger was towed to port late yesterday by another sealer, the Imogene, which finally put a line aboard the leaking vessel.

The steamship Newfoundland had taken off 18 members of the 150-man crew but heavy weather prevented transfer of any others. Those remaining aboard the Ranger bailed ceaselessly to keep the ship afloat.

Seek Appropriation to Develop Smokeless Coal

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—A committee of state officials and legislators named to draft a program for developing a smokeless fuel from Illinois coal will meet next week to recommend an appropriation for the research, Chairman John J. Hallahan said today.

Hallahan, director of the state department of education and registration, heads the committee named by Acting Governor Stelle after St. Louis officials warned that most Illinois coal would have to be treated before it would conform with the city's anti-smoke ordinance.

A special staff and a new building for the geological survey department will be needed to carry on the research, Hallahan said.

Silkworms can be cultivated in the United States as well as in other countries, but the tedious, exacting and hardly profitable hand labor of unwinding the cocoons does not appeal to American laborers.

FANFARE

By DON DANIELSON

The Dixon Sharpshooters are without the services of Earl Page, valuable guard, who was injured in the game against Amboy Thursday night. Page's injury resulted in an inflammation of the tongue and high fever and he will be forced to remain at home for a while. Earl seems jinxed by tough breaks. Earlier in the season he was kept out of the game because of a leg injury suffered in the Sterling-Dixon football game last fall. The team will miss his excellent defensive style tonight.

Well, well—if you remember: Pat Harmon picked Danville to win the state cage championship and last night at the Westville Regional's semi-finals the Danville team was washed off the slate by Indiana, 28 to 22. I suppose it's no consolation to Pat, but we were wrong about Steward—if you could compare the two "pickings."

We picked Steward to defeat Sterling and said that if it didn't work out we would spend Sunday hiding away in the mountains. The way it turned out, we were wrong, but so close that if we hide, it will just be at home catching up on sleep. Steward's boys did the best they could to carry out our predictions—and very nearly did it. We were wrong about Leaf River, however, but then, that Mt. Morris Regional has been sort of strange from the start, upsetting every logical conclusion.

More upsets: At DeKalb last night the favored Sycamore team was defeated by Genoa, 37 to 27 and Huntley very nearly trimmed Waterman in a battle which ended, 31 to 29. It's anybody's guess from now on to the end.

Eight new candidates for the Class B division of the city-wide long pong tournament brings the total entries in this class to 18. Recent candidates are Jack Little, Larry Dougherty, Bob Austin, Bob Harridge, Red Flanagan, Fred Moore, Lyle Myers and Bob Bovey. Nine players are entered in the Class A division and three teams in the doubles. The deadline for entries will be a week from today, March 11, with Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of the following week the dates for play-offs. Those interested in signing up may do so by contacting Lloyd Phelps or calling the Telegraph's sports department.

Mendota, the team which tied with Dixon for second place in the North Central conference this year, won the championship of the Princeton regional last night by defeating DePue, 29 to 25. In the consolation game Hall's Township trimmed Princeton, 45 to 35.

What's the elixir which the Rochelle team swallowed just before the Mt. Morris Regional tournament? Acting as the doorman for nearly all their opponents during the season, the boys suddenly take a new lease on life and crash through some tough opposition to the finals. It's good to see the down-trodden come through, but what's the answer? Is Rochelle the darkest of darkhorses, and now headed to win the state?

In the Prophetstown game last night the Sharpshooters made 51 attempts at field goals and were successful for 19 and a percentage of .373. Prophetstown had a percentage of .125 with 40 attempts and five which clicked. Dixon made 13 free throws and missed seven for a percentage of .650, while the Prophets made six and missed five for .545.

In the Major League at the Dixon Recreation bowling alleys last night Potters team won two games from the league-leading In and Outers. Captain Potter was high man for his mates with 548. John Shaulis was tops for the In and Outers with 556. Patrick Henry rollers won two from Chevrolet and John Krug was the star for the winners with 549. Al Wolfe rolled 557 to lead the Chevrolet team. Sparky's won three from Wares with Walt Klein high for the winners with 535 and Stan Biggart pacing the losers with 440. Medusa defeated Coca Cola two games as Mick Thompson scored 594 for the winners and Roy Wilhelm rolled 589 for the losers. Frank Moore of the Medusa team had high single game for the night with 246. It's a great race and only six more weeks to go.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hot Springs, Ark. — Officially the New York Giants have just begun "boiling out" here and move on to Baton Rouge, La., today to begin spring training, but you'd never know it to see them on the local ball field. The batterymen have been playing practice games all week; Carl Hubbell even tried a few screwballs yesterday and Harry Gumbert was hurling so hard Manager Bill Terry had to slow him down.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — A lot of young pitchers probably would be willing to trade places with Marius Russo, who's getting a trial with the New York Yankees. Manager Joe McCarthy says he may carry 11 moundsmen this season. About six of the veterans in the camp appear sure of their jobs and even if Wes Ferrell and Oral Hildebrand stick, two or three places remain open. And outside of Lefty Gomez, Russo is the only left hander in camp.

Avalon, Calif. — It's reunion time for the Chicago Cubs. The second squad was due today and the schedule for the batterymen was cut short for a welcoming to the new arrivals will be a batting drill tomorrow.

New Orleans, La. — Hampered by cold and rainy weather all week, Manager Oscar Vitt sought today to make a final size-up of the Cleveland Indians' rookies before arrival of the regulars tomorrow. Ray Mack, a Cleveland boy who won the Northern League batting title last year, is one Vitt regards highly.

San Antonio, Texas — The 12th Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Sam Houston, has furnished another baseball candidate it hopes will equal the fame of that other alumnus, Dizzy Dean. The rookie is Cornelius (Conny) English, 22, six feet one inch tall and weighing 192 pounds. He's a right-hander and already has impressed Fred Shellenback, the St. Louis Browns' pitching coach.

Pasadena, Calif. — The drills of the Chicago White Sox resemble practice for a cross country team. It's all because Manager Jimmy Dykes hopes to build up the legs of his players.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Manager Ray Blades could very well get into vaudeville as a juggler the way he's shuffling his St. Louis Cardinals infield. Johnny Mize is set at first, but the other posits are well open and Blades used three different combinations today.

Lake Charles, La. — Connie Mack is alternating Joe Gantenbein and Dario Lodigiani at third base in the Philadelphia Athletics training sessions, with Bill Werber one of five holdouts still absent.

Lakeland, Fla. — The splendid physical condition of Tommy Bridges, veteran right-handed pitcher, has cheered Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers. Last season a chipped elbow minimized Bridges' effectiveness.

reach of the big hay coit, which has earned $196,110 to date.

Col. Howard professes to be keenly disappointed at the withdrawal of Samuel D. Riddle's War Admiral from today's event because of a fluctuating temperature. And he probably means it, for it had promised to be as exciting a duel as that between the Admiral and Sea-Biscuit last year. Stagehand, incidentally, was withdrawn from the last Kentucky Derby because of the same disorder as the Admiral's.

It might be well to point out that Stagehand has not, at this writing, yet won today's Widener Cup, and that it's entirely possible he will be given all the horse race he can handle without having the Admiral on his neck.

The first directory of London had a royal origin. It was started by Charles I, who wanted a list of citizens who could loan him money.

Dixon, Sterling to Meet For Championship

MT. MORRIS AND ROCHELLE WILL MEET IN FINALS

Leaf River and Stillman Valley Defeated in the Ogle County Tourney

GAMES TONIGHT
(Consolation)
7:30—Leaf River vs Stillman Valley.
(Championship)
8:30—Rochelle vs Mt. Morris.
GAMES LAST NIGHT
Rochelle 47; Stillman Valley 27.
Mt. Morris 36; Leaf River 27.

At the Mt. Morris tournament the Rochelle cagers, down-trodden all season, came through to defeat Stillman Valley, 47 to 27, last night to show that the upset of Polo's champions on Wednesday night was no mere fluke. Mt. Morris defeated the champions of the Route 72 conference in the second game when Leaf River was eased out of the picture, 36 to 27.

Mt. Morris and Rochelle will meet for the championship tonight and Leaf River and Stillman Valley will clash for the consolation honors in a preliminary tilt.

Rochelle didn't fool around to show how the game would end when the victors rang up 12 points to six by the opponents in the first quarter. Stillman Valley scored one more point than the winners in the second frame and the half score showed Rochelle leading, 17 to 12.

In the third stanza Rochelle charged on again for 17 points and Stillman Valley collected nine. In the final chapter the winners made 13 points and Stillman Valley made six.

R. Tigan, Rochelle center, snagged the scoring honors with eight field goals and two free throws for 18 points and Lace, forward, was close behind with 16 counters from seven field goals and two charity shots.

Barrick, Valley guard, scored 15 points in the effort to stem the victors' tide.

MT MORRIS WINS
In the second game of the evening, the Rock River Valley conference team of Mt. Morris, upset the champions of the Route 72 league in a closer battle.

The Leafers took the first period, 8 to 7, but Mt. Morris crashed into the second chapter for 13 points and held the lead at the half, 20 to 15. The winners outscored the rivals in the remaining two quarters by four points.

Motter, Leaf River forward, took scoring honors of the game with 14 points from six field goals and two free throws and Coblenz was high for the victors with 11 counters from five field goals and one gift shot.

ANNUAL SAILING RACE

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4 —(AP)—A fleet of 10 schooners, yavls and cutters made ready today for the start at noon of the annual St. Petersburg-Havana sailing race. Favored to cross the finish line first at Morro Castle, guarding the entrance to Havana harbor, was the yawl Wakiva, one of the largest vessels in the winter classic. It recently won the Miami-Nassau race, and is owned and skippered by Harkness Edwards of New York City.

Paris, France, is only 570 miles nearer the equator than is Sitka, Alaska.

Sterling Defeats Steward In Overtime, Dixon Wins By Tripping the Prophets

Losers of Semi-Finals Will Meet for Consolation Tonight at 7:30; Title Game at 8:30

GAMES TONIGHT
(Consolation)
7:30—Steward vs. Prophetstown.
(Championship)
8:30—Dixon vs. Sterling.
GAMES LAST NIGHT
Sterling 33; Steward 31 (Overtime).
Dixon 51; Prophetstown 16.

It was young Robert Griesser who suddenly put the props under Sterling Township's wobbling apperact and prevented it from being upset by Steward's cagers in the semi-finals of the Regional basketball tournament here last night.

Griesser scored the "sudden death" basket to save the day for Sterling in an overtime game which ended 33 to 31 and made his mate eligible for play in the finals against Dixon's Sharpshooters who defeated Prophetstown, 51 to 16, in a dull affair.

The Brandau-men went home with the long end of the score, but the feather went in the cap of the boys from the smaller school who gave their opponents a valiant tussle.

Sterling Un-Nerved
Steward's passing attack worked well and the Lee county lads managed to un-nerve Sterling throughout most of the game. But Coach Lemon's boys failed to prevent Sterling from setting the stage for under-the-basket shots and it was one of those set-ups which defeated them in the end. The losers put everything they had into the game—and it was good.

Sterling, on the other hand, took advantage of the weaknesses of their rivals in clever style and managed to make their efforts count.

Sterling took the lead on Duhm's bucket and Carter had missed two free throws on a foul by Healey. Steward came into the count on O'Donnell's field goal. The Brandau-men took the lead on I. Wolf's bucket, but the Lee county players snatched it away from them with a free throw by Kirby and two by O'Donnell. G. Herrmann scored two more points on free throws before the quarter ended.

In the second frame Sterling forged into the lead with two field goals by Woodyatt and one apiece by I. Wolf, Healey, Ridge and Griesser. Steward was held to a bucket apiece by Carter and Wrigley and a free throw by O'Donnell. Woodyatt's second score was a nifty one-handed shot from long range.

Third Quarter
In the third period Steward made five points on free throws, all by G. Herrmann and three field goals—one by Herrmann and one apiece by O'Donnell and Carter. Three field goals by Griesser and two free throws by Woodyatt left Sterling leading by one point as the quarter ended, 24 to 23.

A field goal by I. Wolf on a plunge to the basket and a charity shot by Duhm were chalked up to increase Sterling's lead in the final chapter before G. Herrmann scored from the side of the court and Carter followed with a crack-erjack one-handed shot from the corner to tie the count.

A long pass to I. Wolf who was open under the basket gave Steward another two points before G. Herrmann narrowed the margin on a gift shot when fouled by Duhm who left the game on his fourth infraction.

Steward Takes Lead
Steward took the lead when G. Herrmann scored from set position at long range and O'Donnell increased the lead to two points when he sank a free throw when fouled by Healey. Sterling called time out but a minute and a half left in the game and when play was resumed B. Wolf knotted the count with an under-the-basket score just before the gun sounded. In less than a minute of the overtime Griesser, wide open under the rim, took the pass and dropped the final counter.

DIXON WINS
Dixon met Prophetstown in the second game and with the ease of sliding down a greased pole, the Sharpshooters came down and sat on the invaders, 51 to 16. Dixon was in top form, but the game lacked excitement. The locals collected 16 points in the first quarter with two field goals apiece by McNamera and Shultz and three by Bevilacqua. Louie and Shultz each threw in one free throw for good measure.

Prophetstown, the team which still holds the scoring honors of the tournament for their defeat of Paw Paw Thursday night, 52 to 22, just couldn't find the rim last night and Roman made the only score in the first stanza.

Dixon relented somewhat in the second chapter with six points and the half score was 22 to 7. In the third quarter the Purple snagged 18 points and held Proph-etstown to four. In the final period Dixon used the reserves and rang up 11 more points to five by the visitors.

Bevilacqua led the scoring with 16 points from six field goals and four free throws. Bugg made ten points, Shultz collected nine and McNamera made eight. Roman made three field goals and one free throw for seven points for the Prophets.

Tonight Steward and the Prophets will meet in the first game at 7:30 for third place honors in the tournament and Dixon and Sterling, traditional tournament rivals, will fight for the championship crown.

MASS PRODUCTION TO BE TRIED BY THE WHITE SOX
Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox, apparently taking their cue from the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals, will see what they can do about mass production of big league baseball players.

Sixty youngsters without professional experience will leave here tonight for a Longview, Tex., training camp sponsored by the White Sox. Ten more young hopefuls will join the party in St. Louis.

The squad was under the direction of Bob Tarleton, former business manager of the Dallas Texas league club who sent Zeke Bonura, first baseman now with the Giants, Pitchers John Whitehead and Monty Stratton, and Catcher George Rensa to the Sox.

Doug Minor, White Sox scout, dug up most of the candidates from semi-pro leagues and college diamonds. The majority of the youngsters are from the Midwest.

Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore., and Pauline Betz of Los Angeles were favorites today to win the singles title in the National Indoor tennis championships.

Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—Tilden Tech of Chicago and nearby Proviso high ranked as the title favorites today as competition in the state high school wrestling tournament moved into the semi-finals. Both schools qualified five men each for semi-final events in the preliminaries last night.

Temperatures inside the earth's so-called "frigid zones" sometimes rise to 80 degrees.

BOILERMAKERS IN PERFECT SPOT TO UPSET BIG 10 RACE

Purdue in Game With the Buckeyes Holds Key To Loop Finals

Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers were in a perfect spot again tonight to administer another resounding upset in the Big Ten basketball race.

Purdue, out of title contention itself, knocked Indiana back on its heels Monday and by doing the same to Ohio State tonight can assure the Hoosiers a tie, and possibly the championship.

Indiana plays Michigan at Ann Arbor while Purdue and Ohio State mix at Columbus. The Hoosiers and Bucks have won nine of 11 games apiece and end their title bids tonight with the championship in the balance.

The Hoosiers figure to have a comparatively easy time with the Michigan five, which is tied for the league hasegment with only two victories in 10 games. But Ohio State should have its hands full with the dangerous Purdue five.

Must Check Jimmy Hull
Purdue must hold in check Ohio's star forward, Capt. Jimmy Hull, who has scored 149 points. Three points against the boiler-makers will give him the individual scoring title for the season.

The only other game tonight brings together Wisconsin and Chicago at the Midway. Tonight's schedule ended the season for Wisconsin, Indiana and Ohio State. Illinois already has completed its season.

The six other teams wind up competition Monday night in games having no bearing on the championship.

Secretary Willing to Prepare Information About Tax Revisions

Washington, March 4—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today he would be glad to prepare information requested by congressional leaders regarding possible tax revisions which would encourage business.

The information was asked yesterday by Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the Senate finance committee and Doughton (D-N. C.) of the House Ways and Means committee.

In a letter to the legislators Morgenthau said:

"I hasten to reply that we shall be very glad to prepare the information you desire, and to present it to your respective committee at your convenience."

Morgenthau said he appreciated Harrison's and Doughton's pledge of cooperation with administration efforts to aid business.

In another statement, Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.) yesterday advocated repeal of the undistributed profits tax, modification of the capital gains tax and curtailment of expenditures so "that the government may live within its means."

Stock Yards Company Signs a CIO Contract

Chicago, March 4—(AP)—Signing of a one-year contract between the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company and the C. I. O. stock handlers union was announced by both sides today.

The agreement ended a dispute over wages and working conditions which was climaxed by a 13-day strike, Nov. 21 to Dec. 5, that halted trading and tied up the yards in the world's biggest livestock market.

O. T. Hendle, vice president and general manager of the company, and Henry Johnson, assistant national director of the packing house workers organizing committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said the contract provided for a 40-hour week, time and one-half for overtime, vacations with pay, a minimum wage scale of 60 cents an hour, except for beginners at 55 cents, and provisions for handling grievances. They added it affected 400 to 600 men, depending on the season of the year.

Considers Dismissal of Peace-Time Spy Charges

Los Angeles, March 4—(AP)—U. S. District Judge Ralph Jenney today studied arguments of defense attorneys for dismissal of peace-time espionage charges against two Russian subjects and a former agent of this country's naval intelligence service.

Judge Jenney ordered the jury dismissed until Tuesday after hearing claims that the government had produced no evidence to show that information which it charges Hafis Salich, Russian-born naturalized intelligence aide, provided Mikhail Gorin and his wife, Natasha, was of confidential nature.

"The mere fact that the information was marked confidential and placed in a confidential file does not make it confidential," asserted Isaac Pachit, representing the Gorins, in Pacific Coast manager for a Russian Travel Bureau.

Ladies' Organization Suggests Women For Supreme Court Bench

New York, March 4—(AP)—The Women in Public Office, Inc., has suggested six women from whom the organization hopes President Roosevelt will pick a successor to Louis D. Brandeis, retired associate U. S. Supreme Court justice.

"So long as this august body is composed of men alone, the United States government will continue to be the most peculiar type of institution on the face of the earth," said Miss Lillian D. Rock, national chairman.

Her candidates: Judge Florence Allen of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Cleveland; Georgia Bullock of superior court, Los Angeles; Genevieve Cline of the U. S. customs court, New York; Gail Laughlin, member of the Maine legislature, Helen Z. M. Rodgers, Republican candidate for representative-at-large from New York last November, and Pearl Hart of Illinois.

Chicago, March 4—(AP)—Urho Oscar Kallio, 42, a member of the CCC camp Sag Forest, was killed today when struck by a truck in Palos township.

The driver of the truck, Alfred Strack, 28, of Batavia, who was on his way to Wheaton with a load of automobiles, told police he was blinded by lights of an approaching car and did not see the ex-service man walking along the roadside.

"Birthday" Murder Principals

produced not a single handgun from the listeners.

Roosevelt got his first applause when he said that the term of "horse and buggy age"—which he used when the Supreme Court of the United States invalidated the NRA—was not one of derogation.

He said it was useful in reminding citizens that modern transportation and communication facilities leave no one "an excuse for sectionalism, for delay in the execution of the public business or for a failure to maintain a full understanding of the acceleration of the processes of civilization."

He also was applauded when he condemned the return of forms of government that he said had demonstrated their tyranny and instability.

The United States, with many other democracies, will never approvingly watch this return to "personal rule," he declared, continuing:

"Where democracy is snuffed out there, too, the right to worship God in one's own way is circumscribed or abrogated. Shall we by our passiveness, by our silence, by assuming the attitude of the Levite who pulled his skirts together and passed by on the other side, lend encouragement to those who today persecute religion or deny it?"

Answer the Same

"The answer to that is 'no', just as in the days of the first congress of the United States it was 'no'."

"Not for freedom of religion alone does this nation contend by every peaceful means. We believe in the other freedoms of the Bill of Rights, the other freedoms that are inherent in the right of free choice by free men and women."

government and denied, the president said, by other forms.

The United States Constitution had proved, Roosevelt declared, that the American type of government could not long remain in the hands of persons seeking personal aggrandizement.

In the Bill of Rights, he continued, lies a vast chasm between "our representative democracy and those reversions to personal rule... which have characterized these recent years."

Compares Rights

He compared the American right to trial by jury with "some processes of trial and punishment which of late have re-incarnated the 'justice' of the dark ages."

Under democracy, the president continued, Americans enjoy safety against unwarrantable searches and seizures, freedom to assemble and petition the congress, freedom of speech—which he said had never been so widely exercised as now—freedom of the press and freedom of religion.

Because of the mildness of our laws of libel and slander, he said, freedom of speech goes unchecked except by the good sense of the American people.

"Any person is constitutionally entitled to criticize and call to account the highest and the lowest in the land—save only in one exception. For be it noted that the constitution itself protects senators and representatives and provides that 'for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.' And the immunity is most carefully not extended to either the chief justice or the president."

Press Still Free

He said he took it that "no sensible man or woman" believed that freedom of the press had been curtailed or threatened or that it should be.

"Representative democracy will never tolerate suppression of true news at the behest of government."

Speaker Bankhead Speaks

Speaker Bankhead said that "we may have been too tolerant" of recent activities of "sinister influences and minorities" at work in the United States.

The house leader declared: "There are evidences of certain sinister influences and minorities now seeking to sap and mine the pillars of this temple of freedom."

"We may have been too generous in our hospitality to them. We may have been too tolerant of some of their recent manifestations of subversive treachery."

"We have sought with rather grim patience to respect the guaranty of freedom of speech; but it may be only fair to admonish all such groups that they take counsel of their prudence lest by going one step too far, it will be too late to escape the wrath and indignation of all real Americans."

Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) described the difficulties which beset the first meeting of congress in New York in 1789, relating how on the official opening day, March 4, only a handful of members showed up and a quorum did not report until April 21.

This government, he said, "has brought a greater degree of liberty, prosperity and happiness to our people than are enjoyed anywhere else in the world—a government that is at peace with the world and respected by the world."

Chief Justice Speaks

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes said that "what the people really want, they generally get."

Praising the American system of government for its division of authority among the executive, legislative and judicial divisions, the chief justice told his audience, including Roosevelt:

"If our checks and balances sometimes prevent the speedy action which is thought desirable, they also assure in the long run a more deliberate judgment."

"And what the people really want, they generally get. With the ultimate power of change through amendment in their hands they are always able to obtain whatever a preponderant and abiding sentiment demands."

His statement reminded the assembled legislators and government officials of Roosevelt's unsuccessful proposal to reorganize the Supreme Court and other branches of the judiciary in order, as the President said, to get new blood into the judicial system.

The proposal followed the court's action in invalidating several early New Deal laws which drew down upon it much administrative criticism. Subsequently, however, the trend of court opinion changed, most later New Deal laws were approved, and the President has been enabled by death and retirements to name three new court members. A fourth vacancy is soon to be filled.

All are Partners

Hughes declared that legislation passed in 1789 establishing the judicial system "made possible the effective functioning of the department of government which is designed to safeguard with judicial impartiality and independence the interests of liberty."

"But," he continued, "in the great enterprise of making democracy workable, we are all partners."

"One member of our body politic cannot say to another—I have no need of thee."

"We work in successful cooperation by being true, each department to its own function, and all to the spirit which pervades our institutions—exalting the processes of reason, seeking through the very limitations of power the promotion of the wise use of power, and finding the ultimate security of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the promise of continued stability and a rational progress, in the good sense of the American people."

Possibly thinking of the situation in some other countries, Hughes asserted:

"We protect the fundamental right of minorities, in order to save democratic government from destroying itself by the excesses of its own power."

"The firmest ground for confidence in the future is that more than ever we realize that, while democracy must have its organization and controls, its vital breath is individual liberty."

DIES IN 103rd YEAR

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Augusta Coy, 103, one of Illinois' oldest residents, died yesterday in suburban Hinsdale. Her family came to Illinois from New York in 1938 and settled in Newark, Ill. She and her husband, Irus, an attorney, made their home in Chicago. A daughter, two sons and eight grandchildren survive.

JOBS AT ARSENAL

Robert A. Rodesch of this city is another pioneer resident both of Dixon and Lee county. He was born in the Dad Joe hotel south of Dixon, Oct. 3, 1864. He came to Dixon in 1881 where he enrolled in the college and has been a resident of this city since. For a number of years he conducted a music store here.

TOUR ENDED HERE

Three Chicago runaway youths, who left their homes to go to Iowa to fish and hunt mushrooms, were taken in custody last evening by Deputy Sheriff Lyle Snader on the Lincoln Highway west of Dixon. The trio had hitch-hiked right from Chicago to Dixon. At the county jail they gave the names of William Sampos, 17; Walter Cielieski, 16, and Chester Zins, 15. Chicago police were notified and the trio was being detained at the county jail awaiting the arrival of their parents.

DRANK GASOLINE; DEAD
Peoria, Ill. (AP)—Richard Eugene Thompson, 3, died last night a short time after he drank a half-cup of gasoline. His father, William C. Thompson of Knoxville had been using the gasoline to clean an automobile carburetor. Before anyone noticed his actions, Richard had taken the fluid. The tragedy occurred at the home of the boy's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lovell of Peoria.

lumination and encourages the use of modern window lighting and air conditioning.

A feature of the rate is that it makes possible combined light and power service under the same rate which has, heretofore, been available only for large industrial customers.

A summary of the new rate is as follows:

Demand Charge
First 4 kilowatts no charge.
Over 4 kilowatts @ $2.00 per kilowatt.

Energy Charge
First 12 kwh or less $1.00.
Next 88 kwh @ 6.00c per kwh.
Next 400 kwh @ 4.00c per kwh.
Next 500 kwh @ 3.15c per kwh.
Next 2,000 kwh @ 2.50c per kwh.
Next 3,000 kwh @ 1.90c per kwh.
Next 4,000 kwh @ 1.60c per kwh.
Next 20,000 kwh @ 1.24c per kwh.
Next 70,000 kwh @ .90c per kwh.
Over 100,000 kwh @ .65c per kwh.

Associated Companies
With today's commission orders, more than $23,300,000 annual rate reductions for customers of public utilities throughout the state have been effected within the last six years. During the period, of January 1, 1933 to the entering of the latest orders' electric rate reductions by the following associated companies were as follows:

Commonwealth Edison Company $4,405,300
Public Service Com-pany of Northern Illinois 4,261,936
Illinois Northern Util-ities Company 534,062
Western United Gas & Electric Company 509,005
Total $9,710,303
James M. Slattery, chairman of the commission, said that the reductions were decided upon after prolonged and exhaustive investigation by the commission's staff into the operating revenues of the four utilities. Also, they were the result of a series of conferences with representatives of the companies over a period of months in keeping with Governor Henry Horner's often stated policy that the primary duty of the commission under his administration is to secure fair and reasonable rates to the public for public utilities' service. By recourse to negotiations, the expense of long drawn out proceedings and litigation was avoided.

Vice Probe At Champaign Goes Into Next Week

Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—At- torney General John Cassidy said last night the grand jury investi- gation of vice and gambling in Champaign was "progressing splendidly."

Walker Butler, special pro- secutor appointed by the attorney general, and T. P. Sullivan, head of the state bureau of criminal investigation, conferred with Cassidy for more than three hours last night.

"We reviewed and discussed the whole grand jury situation," Cas- sidy said after the conference. "Despite the fact that some wit- nesses have left the state to avoid testifying, the investigation is progressing splendidly."

Butler said he expected that the grand jury, which has re- ceased until Wednesday, would be in session "at least until the end of next week."

$140,000,000 HI-WAY PROJECT FOR STATE PROPOSED

Acting Governor Stelle Recommends Immediate Start of Program

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—An immediate statewide highway construction program—calling for $100,000,000 in Chicago superhighways and $40,000,000 for farm-to-market roads downstate—was recommended today by Acting Governor John Stelle, who said enabling bills would be introduced in the legislature next week.

Stelle, urging speedy legislative approval, estimated the program would provide 20,000 miles of all-weather rural roads throughout the state.

Recently approved by the Chicago city council, the metropolitan portion of the program would call for several superhighways radiating from the loop. Without detailing plans for financing except to say the program would be paid out of the state, county and city shares of the state gasoline tax revenue, Stelle said it would involve no "special or additional taxation."

Stelle's prepared announcement said:

Prepared Announcement
"Immediate construction of 20,000 miles of downstate farm to market roads and safety trunk highways in Cook county will be sought in bills to be introduced in the General Assembly Tuesday."

"The program will involve approximately $140,000,000. Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago is advocating construction of safety trunk highways in Cook county which will involve expenditure of $100,000,000 as part of the program."

"The mayor's plan will be explained to the assembly. It involves no special or additional taxes. The cost will be borne by the state, county and city portions of the gas tax."

"I am hopeful that in the near future each farmer in the state will have an all-weather road to his nearest market. I propose the expenditure of $40,000,000 to carry out this program, without additional taxes."

Thousands Neglected
"While Illinois' highway system is regarded as the finest in the world, we are still neglecting thousands of farm families x x x."

Stelle said he had approved preliminary plans for the Chicago highways, adding:

"The proposed safety trunk highways in the Chicago metropolitan area are designed to reduce the hazards in that section and consequently will bring about a huge reduction in accidents. Similar highways in New York and other large metropolitan centers have proved successful."

Stelle issued his announcement after a conference with Director F. Lynden Smith and Chief Engineer Ernst Lieberman of the state highway department; Oscar Hewitt, director of public improvement in Chicago; Phil Harrington, Chicago city engineer; and Charles DeLieu, of the Cook county highway planning commission.

The program was the most ambitious proposed for Illinois since the $60,000,000 and $100,000,000 bond issues by which many of the state's present paved highways were built.

The $60,000,000 issue was approved by the legislature in 1922. On February 1 this year $30,973,000 had been retired. Of the $100,000,000 issue of 1925, $3,500,000 has been retired. Final retirement is scheduled for 1959.

Both of these bond issues were enacted during the administrations of the late Len Small, Republican governor.

VETERAN SUICIDES
Mt. Carmel, Ill.—(AP)—A bullet wound in his head, Guy Glyck, 50-year-old World War veteran, was found dead in a chair yesterday. Coroner C. E. Gilliat, who pronounced the death a suicide, said Glyck had been in ill health.

Judd Decker, Well Known In Sterling, Dies

Judd Decker, trustee of the Sterling Township Cemetery association and former superintendent of the Sterling Water company, died Friday at the Linton nursing home in Sterling.

Mr. Decker was born Oct. 13, 1854, in Jackson township, Pennsylvania. On Dec. 25, 1880, he was married in Rock Falls to Florence E. Fowler, who survives. He also leaves a brother, Addison Decker, of Hartford, S. D. Two daughters, Lorraine and Hazel, preceded him in death.

Mr. Decker was secretary and treasurer of the Riverside Cemetery association for many years, and was a trustee of the Sterling Township Cemetery association at the time of his death. He served as superintendent of the Sterling Water company for 33 years. He was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:15 p. m. at the Melvin funeral home and at 2:30 p. m. at the Sterling Presbyterian church. The Rev. Chester M. Irwin will officiate, and burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Girl Scout News

Members of the Girl Scout World's Fair Committee who are planning events for the Golden Gate International Exposition on the west coast, and for the New York World's Fair, have just announced that Girl Scout Days have been designated in each place. At the San Francisco Fair, Saturday, May 13, will be dedicated to the more than half a million Girl Scouts in this country, and Saturday, June 10, will be "Girl Scout Day" at the New York World's Fair.

All Girl Scouts planning to attend should come to the fair completely uniformed, since special rates will be provided for Girl Scouts in uniform on these days. The exact rate will be announced later.

Other plans for each of the expositions are progressing rapidly, according to Mrs. James E. Shaw, of New York City, chairman of the Girl Scout World's Fair Committee.

"Through the imagination and the active cooperation of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., of Oyster Bay, L. I., vice-president of the Girl Scout national organization, we are going to have a building of our own in the children's world at the New York fair," Mrs. Shaw reports.

"That building is to be a replica of 'Our Chalet,' the international meeting place in Switzerland for Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from all parts of the world. The Chalet will be in charge of a Girl Scout executive, and will be a meeting place for all Girl Scouts who visit the fair."

"International pageants will be given at each exposition on Girl Scout Day," Mrs. Shaw continued. "In New York, about 16,000 Girl Scouts are expected to form a massed background for a pageant to be presented by 1500 Girl Scouts from Westchester county, N. Y. This pageant, to be based on world friendships, will include a chorus of 500 voices, folk dances and other features that are to be dramatizations of the Girl Scout program."

Mrs. A. C. Carney, of New York City, member of the Girl Scout national staff on the World's Fair committee, will meet with Mrs. Charles Kendrick, commissioner of the San Francisco Girl Scout Council, and Mrs. J. W. Mailard, of San Francisco, who are the west coast members of the committee, when she visits California late in February. Following that meeting final plans for Girl Scout Day at the Golden Gate Exposition will be announced.

Other members of the World's Fair Committee include Mrs. Louis Guerin, of New York City, vice-president of the Girl Scout national organization; Miss Jane Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Watson, of New York City; and Mrs. Daniel Bushnell, of Summit, New Jersey. Also Mrs. David Austin, Mrs. John T. Harrison, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Swaine, of New York City. Mrs. Swaine is chairman of the Girl Scout National Business Committee.

ILLINOIS MOST EASTERN STATE AT 'FRISCO FAIR

Spacious State Building Draws Majority of Fair's Visitors

San Francisco, March 4.—(AP)—The spacious Illinois building at the western World's Fair set forth for additional thousands of visitors today the development and resources of the farthest-east state represented at the 288-day event on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay.

From the building entrance, with its statue of Abraham Lincoln, on through the wide hallway with paintings of historical interest and into the main room centered by a huge, scale-reproduction of the city of Chicago, there was no dearth of objects of interest.

The Illinois structure, situated near the 186-foot ski jump and in the same area as the offerings of 12 other states, already has drawn a large share of the approximately 600,000 persons visiting the Golden Gate International Exposition during the first 10 days of its existence.

A large lounge room, attractively furnished and decorated, adjoined the main displays.

Paintings Loaned
The hallway paintings, loaned by Lane K. Newberry, Chicago artist, portrayed such historical points as the Lincoln shrine at New Salem, the birthplace of Jane Addams near Freeport, and the homestead of the noted sculptor, Lorado Taft, at Elmwood.

Near the huge miniature Chicago—showing in detail streets, houses and major districts—was presented a group of modern buildings, constructed to scale, proposed for Shawneetown, and next to them was a reproduction of that city before the flood of 1937. Nearby were illuminated pictures publicizing the Illinois state fair, August 12-20.

In large wall cases were detailed miniatures of the town of Kaskaskia, first capital of Illinois, as it appeared in 1818; Starved Rock state park; the reconstructed portion of New Salem, where Lincoln lived from 1831-1837, and the state Capitol at Springfield.

Large photo-murals, spaced with wood paneling, lined the top of the walls, including views of the Chicago airport, manufacturing district, Merchandise Mart and Board of Trade, the state's major universities, a Peoria distillery, Chicago of 1837, the arsenal at Rock Island, and various agricultural scenes.

The lower part of the walls was taken up largely with paintings, maps and pictures—including that of Governor Henry Horner.

An observatory balcony gave visitors a veritable bird's eye view of Chicago as well as a panoramic presentation of nearly the entire display.

Hedy Lamarr to Marry Gene Markey This P. M.

San Diego, Calif., March 4.—(AP)—Glamorous Hedy Lamarr star of "Algiers," and Gene Markey, associate producer for twentieth Century-Fox studios in Hollywood, will be married this afternoon in Calexico, Calif., Markey disclosed today.

"Yes, it's true," Markey said when he was located at a hotel where he and the dark-haired European beauty had stopped for a few hours rest on their drive from the movie capital.

He said the wedding would climax a friendship of "about a year," since they met at a film party.

HOTEL BUILDER DEAD

Laguna Beach, Calif.—(AP)—Tracey D. Drake, 74, builder of the Drake and Blackstone hotels and the Blackstone theater in Chicago, died yesterday at his winter home here. He had been ill since last September. Drake, a financial leader, built the hotels in association with his brother, John B. Drake.

International Cooties Given LaGuardia Blast

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Civic leaders led by Mayor LaGuardia defended America's democratic liberties last night at a "tolerance meeting" held in reply to the Washington birthday rally of the German-American Bund.

The stocky little mayor, who last month granted the bund permission to hold its rally on the ground that all factions were entitled to freedom of speech and assembly, told a crowd of more than 3,000 that overflowed Carnegie Hall:

"I believe in exposing the cooties to the sunlight, and we recently had an exhibition of international cooties."

LaGuardia, a wartime flier, said he was not fearful of nazism gaining ground in New York but "the people of the world cannot be safe as long as any country is controlled by irresponsible dictators." Catholic, Jewish and Protestant leaders denounced the bund for the "Un-American nature and utterances" of its recent mass meeting.

The meeting, sponsored by the Council Against Intolerance in America as "New York's answer to the bund," was guarded by 30 policemen. (Seventeen hundred officers were assigned to prevent violence at the bund rally at Madison Square Garden, which was attended by more than 20,000 persons.)

Gov. Lehman sent a message from Albany saying despotism never would prevail in the United States if "we, as a nation, militantly safeguard those civil, religious and personal liberties guaranteed to us by our form of government."

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in another message termed the bund members "disciples of bigotry."

TO PLANT MILLION TREES

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Planting of one million trees on worked out strip mine land, the largest reforestation project ever undertaken in Illinois, will start in a few weeks. Conservation Director Thomas J. Lynch said today. Counties in which trees will be planted are Perry, Knox, Will, Fulton, Saline, Jackson and Henry. State Forester Anton J. Tomasek will be in charge.

IMPLEMENT MAKER DEAD

St. Louis—(AP)—John David Manley, 79, former head of the old John D. Manley Implement Company, died at his home in suburban Webster Groves yesterday. Manley, who retired 15 years ago, attended schools in Litchfield, Ill., and Blackburn College at Carlinville.

GARNER BACKING ECONOMY GROUP IN ITS BATTLE

Vice President Works Behind Scene to Cut Government Excess

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The push for economy by Senator Harrison (D-Miss.) and a group of like-minded legislators has the support and cooperation of Vice President Garner.

Close friends of the vice-president said today he was taking an active part in the behind-the-scenes maneuvers of Harrison and other members of the congressional economy group.

But he is not deviating from his long custom of refusing to give interviews on matters of public policy.

His friends said he wished his part in the endeavor to remain buried in the background because the actual work was being done by a group of Senate and House members led by such men as Senators Harrison, Byrd and Glass of Virginia, Adams of Colorado and others.

Those engaged in the effort were not too optimistic of success. They recognize they may expect strong opposition.

Willingness of members of Congress to cut down on Federal spending in their own districts was involved.

Expect G. O. P. Help

At the bottom of the dispute lies the expressed disagreement of the economy group with the economic theory to which they say President Roosevelt committed himself in his annual message.

Roosevelt recommended a $9,000,000,000 budget and said the nation must not cut its expenses drastically now if it wished to attain an $80,000,000,000 annual national income. If such a national income were achieved, he indicated, increased collections from present taxes would balance the budget.

Harrison put the view of those who are revolting in these words: "I have no confidence in the economic philosophy we must spend ourselves out of this economic disorder."

Many southern Democrats are back of the economy drive. It also has drawn support from middle western Democrats, and to a lesser degree from eastern and far western ones. Those back of the drive expect most Republicans to lend a hand.

Michigan's Governor Demands Preacher Substantiate Accusation

Detroit, March 4.—(AP)—Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, who yesterday called upon the Rev. Amos B. Bogart of Battle Creek to "substantiate or retract" the charges the clergyman made of gambling connections in the governor's administration, asserted in an interview today that a Detroit man seeking to legalize slot machines was "behind the whole thing."

The governor said: "The Rev. Bogart's charges are, of course, absurd. I have yet to receive a complaint against slot machines from any county of the state."

Attorney General Thomas Read and Captain Laurance A. Lyon of the state police, who were sent to Battle Creek by the Governor, conferred last night with the minister.

"I have learned nothing that was not contained in the Rev. Bogart's letter to the governor," said Read. "As far as I am concerned the whole matter is in the hands of the state police."

The minister, pastor of the Upton Avenue Methodist Episcopal church in Battle Creek, demanded in his letter that the governor "clean up the whole rotten gambling mess" in the state or face "a recall movement."

Women Assured of Law Enabling Jury Service

Chicago, March 3.—(AP)—Illinois women today had the assurance of three state legislators that they soon would have the right to serve as jurors.

Predictions that bills permitting women to act as jurors would be passed by the assembly were made by Harold G. Ward, majority leader in the senate; Benjamin Adamowski, minority leader in the house, and Edward Sattler, chairman of the house judiciary committee. They spoke yesterday at a mass meeting sponsored by the Illinois Committee for Women on Juries.

FACE JAIL SENTENCE

Waukegan, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Ten leaders in last summer's Chicago Hardware Foundry Company strike notified Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy yesterday they would surrender Wednesday to serve contempt of court sentences imposed by Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county Circuit court.

Robert Wirtz, one of the 10 involved in the C. I. O. strike, received the longest sentence, 120 days.

TWO ADDITIONAL NAVAL BASES IN CARIBBEAN NEED

Roosevelt Tells Some of Results of Watching Navy War Game

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to Washington today for an important personal message to congress after witnessing fleet war games which he described as demonstrating the need for additional naval bases in America's Caribbean possessions.

Arriving here at 7:30 A. M., C.S.T., the president was met at the train by four cabinet officers, Secretaries Morgenthau, Hopkins and Woodring and Postmaster General Farley.

Bronzed and fully recovered from the gripe he contracted before the start of his 15-day sea journey at Key West, Fla., February 18, Roosevelt arrived at the Charleston navy yard at 1 P. M. yesterday aboard the cruiser Houston.

Sealed in the Admiral's quarters before a desk strewn with fresh mail, the president chatted almost an hour with the reporters. He said no "side" was ever declared the winner in the annual war games and this year was no exception.

Many Lessons Learned

Many lessons were gained and he and high naval officers were satisfied with the showing of both "white" and "black" fleets, he said. Summing up the maneuvers as a whole, he said they were important because they:

1. Showed the soundness of plans to establish subsidiary bases at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and St. Thomas, Virgin Islands—bases not necessarily large enough to accommodate battleships but bigger than mere naval air bases.

2. Answered new fueling questions posed by a potential attack on the continent in that area.

3. Taught each naval arm new lessons of coordination.

4. Showed successful operation for the first time in maneuvers of the new fast destroyers and destroyer leaders.

5. Provided much new strategic data because, also for the first time, the zone of "operations" was far outside and to the east of the Caribbean.

Responding to reporters' queries the president reiterated a plea for higher wages in southern industries and told of plans to establish a river museum for historic war vessels near a new building in Washington to house the navy department.

Morris Slayer Found Sane by An Alienist

Morris, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Elvin Wood, 37, indicted for the killing of a life-long friend, was found sane yesterday by Dr. Marvin Sukov, Chicago alienist.

The doctor gave his opinion to Circuit Judge Frank H. Hayes after examining Wood in the presence of his counsel and State's Attorney S. J. Holderman.

Wood pleaded guilty to murdering Abner Nelson, wealthy bachelor, and Judge Hayes ordered a hearing of the facts before passing sentence. Holderman said Wood previously confessed he had planned to demand ransom from relatives of the victim but lost his nerve.

Judge Hayes adjourned the hearing until Monday.
